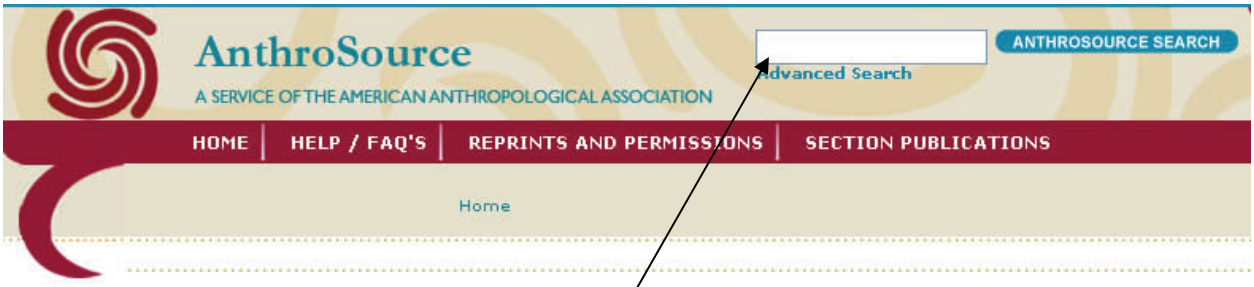
AnthroSource was developed by the American Anthropological Association (AAA) as the premier research database for anthropologists. It contains the full-text of all 32 of AAA's anthropological journals and provides up-to-date full-text articles from 15 AAA peer-reviewed journals (beginning coverage varies).



Basic Search

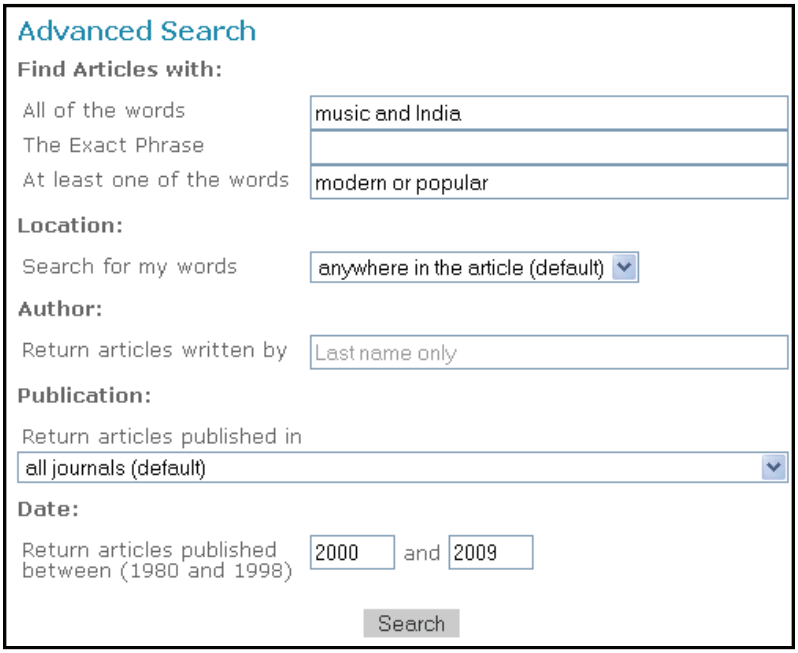
Search for Keywords or an anthropologist's name

Keyword example: Endogamy
Endogamy and Greece

Name example: Ashley Montagu
Ashley Montagu and race

Browse Journals

Click on Browse Journals and you will see a list of journals archived by Anthrosource. Click on a tile, and you will see individual issues.



Advanced Search

"All of the words" - type key-words here to combine topics and narrow your search.

"The Exact Phrase" - type key-words here to search them as a phrase. The same as searching with quotation marks.

"At least one of the words" - type keywords and/or synonyms to broaden your search.

"Location" - Use this option to restrict your search to article titles or abstracts, instead of the entire document.

Tips

Automatic Stemming: AnthroSource automatically includes words with variant endings into your search. For example, a search for anthropology will also search for terms anthropologist, and anthropological.

Automatic exclusion of common words: AnthroSearch automatically excludes common words such as "the," "and," and "a" (commonly referred to as "stop words").
